ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The International Obesity and Metabolism Conference (IOMC 2025) aims to discuss the underlying problems associated with obesity and metabolism that may be responsible for such responses. This event is an excellent tool for collaborating with various scientists, professors, researchers, and students with the common goal of understanding and coming up with great novel therapies and treatments for Obesity and its underlying metabolism.

World Health Organization has reported that from 1990 to 2022 global percentage of individuals suffering from obesity increased four times that is from 2% to 8% accounting for adolescents and children aged 5 to 19 years. On the other hand, obesity in adults has doubled from 7% to 16%.

The conference will host a plethora of scientific events aimed at engaging participants. This will include keynote sessions led by renowned speakers from around the world, along with various oral and poster presentations. This will enable researchers to explore and delve into the latest advancements trends, concerns, encountered challenges, and innovations in the field. By active participation, this conference will contribute towards promising a brighter future for people grappling with obesity.
