Medicine: Integrative Models, Innovation, and Holistic Care"

ABOUT THE EVENT

The Traditional Medicine and Ethnomedicine World Conference, scheduled for 23–25 August, 2026 in Dubai, is a remarkable initiative that showcases global knowledge on traditional healing systems through research, practice, and innovation. Our mission is to shed light on the rich and complex field of ethnomedicine, its cultural roots, scientific applications, and its growing role in integrative health.

In the very heart of this conference lies a strong belief in the power of collaboration, knowledge sharing, and learning from experience. We envision creating a platform that not only fosters a warm and safe environment for traditional healers, researchers, clinicians, and academics but also allows them to come together, exchange ideas, and jointly explore holistic solutions for health and well-being.

Traditional medicine remains a vital component of healthcare in various parts of the world. According to World Health Organization statistics, nearly 80% of people worldwide obtain their basic health needs from traditional medicine. These are systems that span herbal pharmacology to spiritual healing, full of ancient wisdom that remains highly relevant today.

While this is the case, contemporary medicine is shifting towards more inclusive, person-centered care. This conference proposes that indigenous knowledge be integrated with modern science to address the most pressing health issues of today, including equity, sustainability, and access.

We are committed to supporting your efforts to be recognized and appreciated by a professional organizing team on a top-class stage. With the right organization and clever scheduling, the Traditional Medicine and Ethnomedicine World Conference 2026 will remain an unforgettable experience filled with a wealth of knowledge for all, including you, us, and those who aim to transform the healthcare sector through the fusion of tradition and innovation.
